Each year, NAAP acknowledges the literary and artistic achievements of those who have created works that represent and promote psychoanalysis and psychotherapy. Publishers enjoy the recognition of their authors, foundations of their artists, and production companies of their directors.

The NAAP Gradiva Committee (see www.naap.org for full description of the Gradiva Awards) welcomes applications for qualified, new committee members/judges who can be added to the roster for this year's review of materials submitted, selection of winners, and general committee work.

Qualifications for interested committee members can include:

- A general ability to read critically as evidenced in prior work.
- Psychoanalytic teaching experience.
- Publishing, or publication background.
- Film production, or involvement in assessment of films, plus a psychoanalytic background.
- Art curating, teaching, or critical review, plus a psychoanalytic background.
- An in person meeting with the Committee Chair and another Committee member to review what is involved in the committee's tasks, and to make sure it is a good fit for all.
- Full Psychoanalytic membership in NAAP (required).

The NAAP Board of Trustees also decided to open the Gradiva committee to applications from institute students. These will be consulting internships, not voting seats. On graduation, students are eligible to apply for a full voting seat on the committee.

Qualifications for interested student committee members can include the criteria above, with candidate membership in NAAP required.

Those interested in working with this lively, and well-respected group should submit a letter indicating their interest, along with a resume, and a very brief statement about what they believe they can bring to the committee. Information should be sent to: Nunzio Gubitosa, gubfam7@aol.com and cc'd to Patricia Bratt, patbratt@comcast.net, and the NAAP office, naap@naap.org

Thank you,

Patricia Bratt
NAAP President
